

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for generating an adapted reference for automatic speech recognition. In a first step, recognition is performed based on a spoken utterance and a recognition result which corresponds to a currently valid reference is obtained. In a second step, the currently valid reference is adapted in accordance with the utterance in order to create an adapted reference. In a third step, the adapted reference is assessed and it is decided if the adapted reference is used for further recognition.